ARMY vs. NAVY

Game Time: 3:00pm ET

Selection: ARMY, Money Line, -140, over NAVY

In 2014 coach Jeff Monken took over as coach over Army, which had suffered many years of consecutive losses to their arch rival Navy. Monken has turned the ship around, no pun intended, and set Army back on the winning track over Navy. In fact, they have won 5 of the last 7 years including a gritty double-overtime win last year.

He has employed a different brand of option football this season featuring the shotgun formation and zone blocking schemes, rather than its traditional flexbone formation. Army has responded winning 3 of their last 4 games, including wins over Air Force, Holy Cross and a 7-4 Coastal Carolina team. They come into this game confident and ready to beat Navy again.

With a new coach this year Navy has had all sorts of problems, especially at quarterback. Tai Lavatai is back in at QB after being benched earlier in the season. This doesn't bode well for a Navy team facing Army and their strong pass defense this afternoon. Lay the money line with Black Knights.
