ARKANSAS STATE RED WOLVES VS. JAMES MADISON DUKES

Selection: 5-point, 2 team teaser
Charleston -0.5, James Madison -0.5

We're going to dive into a two-team teaser tonight. There are a pair of favorites that seem very logical, and we'll take advantage of a five-point play that knock both spreads down considerably.

First, the College of Charleston Cougars have won 10 in a row with a style that's incredibly fun to watch. They've scored 80 or more points in seven of their last 10 games, all wins. They shoot lots of threes, they make more than 72% of their free throws, and they distribute the ball very well, averaging more than 15 assists per game. Charleston's tough to slow down, and for more than a month, no CAA team has been able to do that.

Towson, meanwhile, tends to play a slower-paced game, and while they did top the Cougars once earlier in the season, that was during a rare rough patch for Charleston when they dropped three of five games. The Cougars have since righted the ship, and one of their recent wins was a 72-56 victory over the Tigers just a few weeks ago.

Meanwhile, James Madison got a bit of a scare Sunday, when #11 seed Texas State (playing its fourth game in as many days) made a ferocious second-half rally and lost by just five points. However, those looking to bet the Dukes have reason to believe the last 20 minutes were an outlier. James Madison shot just 35.5% in the second half, which is out-of-character for a squad making more than 47% of its shots this season.

Arkansas State, however, may come back to Earth in a big way after a thrilling upset of top-seeded Appalachian State. They were significant underdogs Sunday and won that game on a buzzer-beater. The stats, however, show a team that has struggled defensively for most of the season. They allow nearly 77 points per game, one of the highest such totals in the country, and that's not ideal considering the efficient offense they'll be going up against this evening.

Charleston and James Madison play similarly, and that style has resulted in a lot of wins to this point. Two more seem to be in the offing, and this teaser provides a way to be rewarded if that scenario materializes.
